An Extraordinary Mother's Day Weekend Experience

Looking for a Mother's Day activity that is out of the ordinary? This year, there's something refreshingly different on the horizon—an experience that blends creativity, connection, and a touch of wonder.

On Saturday, May 9th at 1pm, Worth Brewing Company will host a truly unique event featuring Karl Schilling of Kaleidoscopes To You, bringing his world-renowned artistry and passion straight to the community. This isn't just an event you attend—it's one you create.

Guests of all ages are invited to build their own kaleidoscope, guided by Karl himself. Whether you're celebrating with your mom, spending time with your kids, or gathering friends for something out of the ordinary, this hands-on experience offers a rare chance to slow down and make something meaningful together.

What makes this event special isn't just the finished piece—it's the process. As you assemble your kaleidoscope, you'll discover the fascinating blend of art and science behind it. Patterns shift, colors dance, and suddenly a simple object becomes a personal work of art and a conversation piece you'll treasure long after the event. All pieces are included for this event but you are also encouraged to bring your own small transparent treasures to incorporate into your one of a kind kaleidoscope, if you'd like!

The event is designed to be accessible and fun for everyone. Kaleidoscope kits will be available for $10, with additional creations offered at just $5—making it easy to dive in, experiment, and maybe even make more than one keepsake.

In a world full of predictable celebrations, this is your chance to surprise Mom—and yourself—with something truly memorable. It's creative, it's interactive, and it's guaranteed to spark a little joy and curiosity.

Mark your calendars, gather your people, and come ready to create. This Mother's Day weekend, make memories that are as colorful and unique as the kaleidoscope you'll take home.
